NINE ACTIONS ARE BEGUN IN SLUM PROJECT

The Elba Housing Authority plowed ahead this week in its Claxton Street slum clearance project with legal proceedings started against nine property owners. After disposition of three court cases last week in other condemnation suits pending for the last several months.

A legal notice published elsewhere in this issue of The Elba Clipper states the legal proceedings against land tracts naming the following as parties: Mary Patte, Bethel Colored A.M.E. Church, Salle B. Mae Bryan and husband, T. B. Bryan, Walter Bullard, John Bullard and wife, Annie Bullard, David Yelverton, Minnie Bullard, Bill Jackson, Es-telle J. Brooks.

For Basil Whitman An judgment for $25,000 was awarded by a jury last week in Circuit Court for Basil Whitman, chairman of the project, and for damage to other property owned by him, and for cost of moving his automobile dealer business which was on land included in the project. He also was awarded $550 for a small vacant lot on highway 87. Whitman was represented by Attorney G. A. Lindsey while the Housing Authority was represented by Attorney G. C. Cassidy of Enterprise.

A jury awarded $16,000 for three small parcels of land owned by 91-year-old Ernest Lane, negro, who had occupied the land since 1908, according to a 1958 report. The judgment was $6,000 more than an appraisal. The award was for his home and two other tracts with five small lots. Lane was represented by Attorney J. C. Farnsworth of Elba and Hubert Farmer of Elba.

A judgment of $17,800 for approximately two acres of land and two concrete buildings, one 14x16 and another 15x18, each with 23 small frame dwellings were awarded to Miss Teresa Brunson and her mother, Mrs. Ben Brunson. Miss Brunson and her mother were represented by Attorney Jackie W. Stokes and Mr. Farmer.

Started in 1957 A slum clearance project involving about 35 acres of land in that project has been under way since 1957 along the Brantley and Troy roads, within the city limits. Plans are to remove substandard dwellings and improve the property by paving streets, putting in water, curb and sewers and then sell the property either in lots or as a unit.

Members of the Housing Authority are: S. T. Morrow, chairman; Oscar Vaughan, J. D. Whitman, D. M. English and Luther Hamm.

THOROUGHLY enjoyed getting a glass of milk at Grimes' Tuesday afternoon, last week, when she was preparing to entertain the Elba Bridge Club. In the living room, the white lamp shades were taken off, set up, each centered with a large, full-blown red carnation, and greenery set in a milk glass goblet. Told Gwyn how pretty it was, she responded, "The flowers picked up the red and red satin streamers ran the length of the table which was centered with a footlong helmet filled with pink carnations. Down the length of the red runner placed red crystal vase filled with white carnations from which a single red candle. The placecards were starkly adorned with a small, gold ribbon tied in red and with the guest's name printed in red ink.

It was a very pleasant party enjoyed by the men of the wedding family.

PREDICTING the carnation "trees" that were held at Grimes' in Troy with Mary Anne Lee and Mrs. Odell Dyess as hosts, the private dining room was decked with the lilies covered plates being centered with arrangements of pink carnations, white gingham cloth and red ribbon tied in bows.

Some fifty guests attended and were greeted by a lovely bride dressed in a gown of pink lace shaded from shell deep rose.

ON A WINTER AFTERNOON hurried home from school to attend a pretty party at Dixie Clark's comfortable home. The tables were set with three rose trees, each hand-made of pink tulip and pink roses sprinkled in silver, set in pink pots. Narrow streamers of pink satin ribbon hung from trees and vines. At each place were placecards of white pleated wedding bells tied with pink bows.

For this delightful pre-nuptial party, the tables were set in the traditional "up" style, at least, before the honeymoon party, was an heirloom silver and crystal footed vase filled with pink snapdragons, carnations, and pink tulips.

The tables were covered in white and the chairs in pink, with three-quarter sleeves trimmed in grey for her. Her hat was a small crocheted crown for with nose was a bright orange. She was the belle of the presentation of pearl earnings to her attendants. Highlights of the afternoon were the members of the wedding party and family.

WHILE we were dined in an elegant manner on one side of town, the men of the Sawyer were busily at a gift of linen to Lela Ann. The gift was daintily wrapped and adorned with a miniature china bride and groom.

For the party, Lela Ann wore a white grey velvet dress with Puritan collar and a wide belt of charcoal. Her hat was a black bonnet.
